OLD IRONSIDES.

Again the Constitution throws
Her star-gemmed banner to the breeze,
Protecting friends, defying foes,
The glory of our Northern seas.
Look, where she rides upon the deep
With gaud pennon floating wide,
Like panting war-horse dree to leap Along the wild Atlantic's tide.
Long may she head the lists of Fame,
And carry victory in her name.

And shall her ensign e'er come down
While one remains to fire a gun?
While glory wreathes her golden crown
And points to ages not begun?—

No!—let the sons of France assail
With thunders never yet their own,
Let cowards round their hearts turn pale,
And senates in their chambers groan,

The dag that Freedom gave our sires
Shall scatterless wags mid battle fires.

I see her bounding to the fight,
With banner sparkling in the light;
I hear the cannon's awful peal,
I see the Gaule's tragic reply:

I see her spars in fragments fall,
I hear her proud for mercy call—

I hear the Yankee seamen cheer
Above the din of battle clear;

I see the clouds of smoke arise
And mingle proudly with the skies,

While o'er the tri-color behold
My country's banner dip in gold.

Old Ironsides! thy name shall be—

A grateful nation's gathering cry,
When war sits brooding on the sea,
And peaceful barks for shelter fly.

Old Ironsides! the craven soul

Shall gather courage from thy name,

When o'er the deep thy thunders roll,

And dread the ghosts the quivering flame—

Long may you ride the ocean tides,

The fear of foes—Old Ironsides!

put up prayers for your good King, who loves brave men, and delights to reward them.' Signed :
NECKER, Director General of the Finances.'

The courageous pilot received this letter, and the reward which accompanied it, with the utmost gratitude, only expressing surprise, that his action of the thirty-first of August should have made so much noise, since he had shown the same zeal on many other occasions, without ever thinking of any reward, or receiving any. After paying his debts, and buying new clothes for his wife and children,—thing which he had rarely been able to do before,—he asked permission of the Intendant to go to Paris, and thank M. Necker, and see, if possible, the young King who 'loved brave men, and delighted to reward them.' He went to Paris in the sailor's dress which he had formerly bought for his weddin. Some one having asked him what could have inspired him with an intrepidity so rare, he answered in these remarkable words : 'Humanity, and the death of my father. He was drowned : I was not in the way to save him, and I swore from that moment to devote myself to the rescue of all whom I might behold in danger at sea.' Was ever a more pure, a more sublime homage, offered to filial piety?—Knickerbocker.

Also—a very superior quality of ROSE WATER, distilled by the Shakers, just received and for sale in quantities to suit; at their shop, which was going to pieces very fast. His ardor was not diminished—a wave carried him under the wreck, and he was concluded to be lost, when he soon reappeared, bearing in his arms a sailor who had been thrown from the ship: he brought him on shore motionless, and almost lifeless. At length, after a great number of vain attempts, he succeeded in conveying the rope to the vessel, and those of the crew who had strength enough remaining, tying it round them, they were dragged on shore. Boussard thought he had saved every soul on board. Exhausted with fatigue, bruised and battered with the blows and shocks he had received, he reached his home with difficulty, and there fell down in a swoon. He was just brought to himself, having discharged a vast quantity of sea water, and was recovering his spirits, when he was told that a groaning was still heard on board the wreck.

The moment he learned this, he seemed inspired with new strength, and breaking away from those who were about him, ran to the shore, got on board, and was fortunate enough to save one of the passengers, who, from weakness, had not been able to avail himself of the assistance given to his companions. Of ten men who had been in the ship, only two perished, and their bodies were found the next day. On this occasion, the following letter was written by M. Necker to Boussard, agreeably to the order of Louis XVI :

'BRAVE MAN! I did not know, till yesterday, by means of the Intendant, the courageous action you performed on the thirty-first of August. I gave an account of it to the King, who has ordered me to express his high satisfaction, and to announce to you on his part, that he makes you a present of a thousand livres, and gives you an annuity besides, of three hundred livres. I write with orders to this effect to the Intendant. Continue to succour others when you can, and

A. JONES'S VEGETABLE HAIR OIL, for strong Hair, bald Heads, strengthening and fortifying the Roots against all causes which operate so powerfully in their decay and destruction.

This VEGETABLE OIL possesses very peculiar nourishing properties, which are imparted to the roots of the hair with a very few applications.

It causes the hair to grow on heads that have been entirely bald for years, with astonishing rapidity.

This important discovery, from the Vegetable Kingdom, prevents the hair from falling off with five or six applications—keeps it lively and healthy—free it from scurf and dandruff—prevents it from turning grey, and when it begins to turn, will restore it to its original beauty and lustre by continuing the use of the Oil.

The fragrance of this Oil is without exception and ladies and gentlemen of the first respectability have used it and approved of it, and prefer it to any other for perfuming, curling and keeping the hair moist and glossy.

The growth of hair on children is much facilitated by the use of this Oil.

It is decidedly superior to any other article in the United States, and the proprietor has put it up in bottles containing a sufficiency to produce an effect of restoring hair on any head, or of satisfying any person of its salutary effects.

This Oil will cause whiskers to grow in a very short time.

It is universally approved of wherever it has been used, and will make its own merits unrivaled.

Washington, Thursday, Feb. 19.

Nothing proves more conclusively the slang-wanging disposition of our people, than the daily scenes exhibited in both branches of Congress. At this moment, when there are but ten working days left of the session, each House is engaged in discussing a question, which no coaxing, no persuasion, can induce it to terminate, and which it knows will find no favor in the other. I mean the bill in the Senate to create offices in perpetuity, which will not be countenanced in the House—and the House bill to regulate the deposits in the State Banks, which the majority in the Senate will certainly not listen to when it reaches them. To-day, Mr Grunden terminated his speech in the Senate against Mr Calhoun's bill. It was a speech replete with sound argument, and exposed the practical operation of the system, proposed by the bill, so satisfactorily, that I think few impartial men listened to him who were not persuaded, that if the Constitution had been in terms, what the opposition say it designed, the people would long since have altered it. Mr G. shewed, that the President sending his reasons for removing an officer, to the Senate, lead to their consideration in the first instance—just as then demanded that the accused officer should be heard, witnesses examined, the employment of counsel, censure and recrimination, till at length, the necessary accumulation of officers in the government, would keep the Senate employed year in and year out, in that and no other business. This, to say nothing of its trenching upon the clear powers of the Executive, proves most conclusively, that the framers of the Constitution never contemplated such a construction of that instrument as the opposition now contend for. Well, they adjourned early to-day, because Mr Poindexter, forsooth, expressed a wish to be heard to-morrow, and he was not called and primed to-day—so we go. But Mr Webster says he will demand the yeas and nays on the adjournment to-morrow, if they do not first dispose of this bill.

In the House, to-day, a bill was introduced to abolish lotteries and the sale of lottery tickets in this District. This crying evil has at length attracted the attention of Congress, for it exists here to a degree that is discreditable to their legislation, although the mischief and miseries of the system are as apparent and notorious as they are in those States where the evil exists free from legal restrictions.

The deposite bill occupied much the greater part of the session, and the impatience of the House, with respect to the incessant talking, was frequently manifested in calls for the previous question—calls to order—calls of the House, &c. Col. Watnough makes himself generally very conspicuous on such occasions. I was much amused, to-day, with an excuse of indisposition offered by the gallant Col. for the non-attendance of his friend and colleague, Mr Harper, which was made necessary upon a call of the House, when Mr H. did not answer to his name. Having got Mr H. excused, however, in turning round, the Col. perceived him in the House! he immediately rose, and stated to the Chair that he had been misinformed with respect to his friend's health. He believed he was perfectly well!

A despatch has been received from Mr Livingston, the purport of which has not yet transpired.

Extract from a Letter, dated Manchester, Eng., 4th Jan. 1835.

"I little expected to have been at this time in the smoke and dingy atmosphere of Manchester, when I left home in October. I hoped, by this time, to have reached Italy. Circumstances, however, have detained me until now, and I shall commence the tour about the 1st February. Every thing is so changed here, since I left England in 1825, I have found it necessary to remain here a time, to review the course of trade between England and the United States, and to inquire of what improvement it may be susceptible. This country is carrying on at present an immense and very profitable business; and, as far as I can judge, owes much of it to the greater freedom given to trade by the Reformed Parliament. Although that Parliament has been suddenly dissolved by the instigation of the aristocracy, there are no mobs or riots, and the people remain quiet. This is always the case when the operatives are fully employed, and can procure food and raiment. It has fallen to my lot to be here during a general election, and on Thursday and Friday next the voters of Manchester are to elect two members of Parliament. It is amusing to see how plentiful Lords, and Dukes, and other great men have become all at once. They are all around me, and are calling at the shops of laborers and citizens, and asking the favor of their votes. They are also addressing the people out of the windows of the hotels, declaring their sentiments, and making a thousand promises, every one of which they intend to break, if they are ever elected. All labor and business is suspended, and I shall be pleased when it is over. Formerly it occupied fourteen days—now, only two. All admit that the present is the last desperate attempt of the Tories to check the course of Reform in England; and few suppose the Duke of Wellington can remain long in power. I find the Reformers very much divided in sentiment as to the degree to which Reform shall be carried, or whether the work shall be done by degrees, and with moderation, or hastily, and with violence. This want of union among Reformers, of course, strengthens the hands of the Tories. I had heard in what high estimation our venerable President was held before I left home; but I find him a greater favorite than I expected. The Liberals, in particular, take a deep interest in the contest between the General and the Bank, and admire his firmness and intrepidity. 'The brave old man,' they call him. Members of Parliament are writing him letters, expressing their joy at the result of the recent elections in the United States, and speaking of the President in high terms. I like this in the English. Indeed, the only persons I ever meet, who speak harshly of the General, are our own countrymen. I believe there are only three Jackson men among all the forty Americans here. No matter; they will be more presently; and they have become wonderfully quiet since the result of the election in New York. I rejoice that the people have come forward so nobly to sustain the Executive. It must be most gratifying to the General and his Cabinet. I suppose no doubt now remains that the Bank must fall, and that Mr Van Buren will be the next President."

POLICE COURT.

A General Shop-Lifter.—William Hackett (alias Harris, alias Haggett) was arrested at Lowell, and brought to this city, by Veteran Reid, upon a charge of stealing sundry articles of new wearing apparel, &c., from the shop of Mr. Amos Sumner, in Brattle street, which he, probably, entered on the morning of the 5th instant, while the shop-boy had stepped out to procure a light, with which to kindle a fire. After the goods were missed, and a description of an individual, seen lurking round the premises, was given to the constabulary, suspicion rested on Hackett, who was discharged from the State Prison about a year ago, and since which time it is not known that he has been engaged in any visible means of obtaining a livelihood. Upon searching his mother's house, in Dracut, where he lived, a very extensive and choice assortment of clothing and dry goods was discovered by the officers, and claimed by Hackett as his property. Out of this collection, Mr Sumner was enabled to identify pantaloons, and other articles, to the value of $48. As the balance yet remaining unclaimed were, in all probability, stolen from Boston stores, at different times, a list of them, together with a description of Hackett's person, is subjoined, for the information of the sufferers by his speculations:—

1 large black silk handkerchief, 1 remnant broad-cloth, 1 do silk vest, 1 do calico, 1 pr green pants, 1 light do, 2 black do, 1 mixed do, 1 figured silk vest, 1 blue coat, 1 Adelaide coat, 1 black broadcloth cloak, 1 coat, 1 claret coat, 1 green surtout, 1 fancy hdkf, 1 piece white linen, 1 pr drab pants, 1 fancy hdkf, 2 do, 2 neck stocks, 1 pr deer skin gloves, 1 black silk umbrella.

Hackett is genteely dressed, 5 feet 10 inches in height, rather light built, and sinewy; shoulders square; body erect, but head inclined forward; complexion darkish; outline of face oval, but tapering towards the chin, which is not prominent; forehead narrow, and receding; bump of reverence depressed; all the organs laid down, on the latest and most approved phrenological maps, as the local habitations of the "sentiments common to man and the brute creation," in the back of the head, very fully developed, and indicating an irresistible propensity for the animal and selfish (i. e. thieving) propensities; eyes, dark, restless, but vacant in expression; nose, long, and, in profile, slightly curving near; mouth, small, rather round, with short upper lip; hair, black, straight and oily; whiskers, small, and three shades lighter than his hair.

Dress.—Short blue frock, with velvet collar; velvet vest; black pantaloons, with the pocket flaps lined with silk velvet; and a new yellow flag handkerchief "tied round his neat neck," a-la-mode de Veteran Reed, as he may have been seen any time these five and thirty years.

Murder.—An atrocious murder, (says the Augusta Constitutionalist, of the 11th instant,) was committed at a place called Florencieville, in Augusta, on Monday evening last, with a large knife, on a man named Richardson, from Vermont. An inquest was held over the body yesterday, and from evidence adduced to the jury they came to the conclusion that he had been murdered by a man by the name of John Grey, from Lincoln County, Georgia, who has fled from the State, but officers are in pursuit of him—he was traced so far as Hamburg, and is supposed to have fled to South Carolina. On the body of the deceased was found several counterfeit 25 and 12 1/2 cent pieces well executed. —Charleston Courier.

John Kelly and Vincent Sylvera.—A couple of young men, in sailors apparel, were arraigned for being engaged in a general fight, in Sea street, on Sunday afternoon. It appeared that another gang inquired of one of the defendants the way to South Boston, but the answer not suiting the inquirer, he struck Sylvera, and made off, but was followed by Kelly and Sylvera, when a general and disgraceful engagement took place, in which the defendants took a very active part. One of the combatants was so severely bruised, that the constable who arrested him, deemed it prudent to take him to an apothecary's to dress his wounds, and cleanse the blood from him; but before the operations upon him were completed, he bolted from the shop, leaving a dollar for the doctor's fee, and a cutting lesson to the constable for his humane attention. Kelly and Sylvera were the only affrayers secured, and were each fined $1.00 and costs.

Para.—A letter from a young gentleman at Para, published in the Salem Register of yesterday morning, dated January 28, gives the following particulars in relation to the insurrection at that place:—

"We have had a very bad row here—the people that made it belonged up the river. In the first place, they killed the President, and the General of Arms in the Palace, and then killed the captain of a Brazilian man of war in the street: these were the head men of the place. After this, they took a prisoner out of prison, and made him President of Para.—The affray lasted 24 hours; there were a great many Portuguese killed at the same time. A great many people, male and female, sought refuge at our house, thinking they were safe under the Yankee flag."

Despatches for the United States Government from the American Consul at Para, were received by the brig Gentleman, Capt. Appleton, which arrived at Salem on Saturday.

An attempt was made on Thursday last to set fire to the office of the Baltimore Gazette. A lighted candle had been placed in a small box in the cellar, to which attention was attracted by the smell of the brimstone, and when it was discovered the fire was about communicating to the box. If it had been left for a few minutes longer, it would have been impossible to prevent a conflagration.

The printing establishment of the Florida Herald, published at St Augustine, was entirely destroyed by fire on the 29th ult.

The large Presbyterian church at Mendham, six or seven miles from Morriston, N. J. took fire on Tuesday morning, and was destroyed.

Yesterday was honored as the birth day of WASHINGTON by the firing of salutes, parades of the military, and other demonstrations of respect for the memory of the Father of his Country.

Mr Booth and Mrs Duff are playing* at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia. Miss Jarman's benefit at the Chesnut presented a very crowded house.

Miss Phillips, we understand, will succeed Celeste, at the Tremont.

The choice of one half of the boxes at the Tremont Theatre, for last evening, was sold at auction yesterday morning, and brought $250.

Mr and Mrs Wood are about reembarking for America.

Express News cannot be believed—it is transported with such rapidity that the truth is all run out of it before it reaches its place of destination.

I am hostile to punishment by death in any form;—my reasons are these:—

1st. The innocent often suffers instead of the guilty, and families are always disgraced by one of its members suffering an ignominious end.

2d. Human tribunals are so imperfect, that where life and death are pending, it is difficult to decide on circumstantial evidence, or on sanity or insanity of mind.

3d. It does not lessen crime.

4th. It is a species of revenge or retaliation, but not of punishment, the design of which is always emendatory.

5th. There is no authority whatever for capital punishment in the Christian dispensation; but, on the contrary, there are many passages which imply its prohibition.

6th. It is a relic of barbarism, practised at ancient periods, when the philosophy of the human mind was as little known as the mountains in the moon.

7th. It is at war with mercy and humanity, and a stigma to the laws of any free government. These several positions I shall endeavor to prove, in future communications. I feel encouraged to do so from the fact, that the philanthropic world is now regarding the subject with that interest it deserves. SQUANTUM.

Melancholy Accident.—Death of Lieut. W. S. Chandler, of the U. S. Army.—On the 26th ult. Lieut. Walter S. Chandler, an estimable and intelligent officer of the U. S. Army, left Mobile in a small boat, with a Sergeant and four soldiers, for Fort Morgan, where he was stationed. The boat was capsized in a gale, about two miles below the Choctaw Point light house, and all on board perished, except one soldier who clung to the bottom of the boat, and was taken off the following morning by Captain Prior, of the steamboat watchman, from New Orleans. The name of the soldier saved is Clarke. Those in the boat were Sergeant Grant, and soldiers Wise, Finn and Stevens. Clarke states that Lieut. Chandler, as each man relaxed his hold and was swept off from the boat by the current, swam immediately to his relief, and with his little bit of stick which he carries, he tapped thick lips gently on the head, who fell down, when he was seized by the collar, and carried to the watch-house. He justified himself by saying he thought turn about was fair play, and he had as much right to kidnap a white woman as white men to steal black. The reasons of the dark philosopher not being sufficiently cogent, he was sent to prison to sate over his own conduct, and if possible to arrive at a somewhat different conclusion.—Brimstone took an immediate rise.—Noah.

Kidnapping.—A woolly-headed ebony colored adjunct of the abolitionists and amalgamists, recently attempted to abduct a white female in Albany. At a late hour of the night, he seized one of two white females walking in the streets, and attempted to drag her in a sleigh which he had in readiness. Her screams alarming one of the watch, he came up, and with his little bit of stick which he carries, he tapped thick lips gently on the head, who fell down, when he was seized by the collar, and carried to the watch-house. He justified himself by saying he thought turn about was fair play, and he had as much right to kidnap a white woman as white men to steal black. The reasons of the dark philosopher not being sufficiently cogent, he was sent to prison to sate over his own conduct, and if possible to arrive at a somewhat different conclusion.—Noah.

Peabody.—An atrocious murder, (says the Augusta Constitutionalist, of the 11th instant,) was committed at a place called Florencia, in Augusta, on Monday evening last, with a large knife, on a man named Richardson, from Vermont. An inquest was held over the body yesterday, and from evidence adduced to the jury they came to the conclusion that he had been murdered by a man by the name of John Grey, from Lincoln County, Georgia, who has fled from the State, but officers are in pursuit of him—he was traced so far as Hamburg, and is supposed to have fled to South Carolina. Murder.—An atrocious murder, (says the Augusta Constitutionalist, of the 11th instant,) was committed at a place called Florencia, in Augusta, on Monday evening last, with a large knife, on a man named Richardson, from Vermont. An inquest was held over the body yesterday, and from evidence adduced to the jury they came to the conclusion that he had been murdered by a man by the name of John Grey, from Lincoln County, Georgia, who has fled from the State, but officers are in pursuit of him—he was traced so far as Hamburg, and is supposed to have fled to South Carolina. On the body of the deceased was found several counterfeit 25 and 12 1/2 cent pieces well executed. —Charleston Courier.

John Kelly and Vincent Sylvera.—A couple of young men, in sailors apparel, were arraigned for being engaged in a general fight, in Sea street, on Sunday afternoon. It appeared that another gang inquired of one of the defendants the way to South Boston, but the answer not suiting the inquirer, he struck Sylvera, and made off, but was followed by Kelly and Sylvera, when a general and disgraceful engagement took place, in which the defendants took a very active part. One of the combatants was so severely bruised, that the constable who arrested him, deemed it prudent to take him to an apothecary's to dress his wounds, and cleanse the blood from him; but before the operations upon him were completed, he bolted from the shop, leaving a dollar for the doctor's fee, and a cutting lesson to the constable for his humane attention. Kelly and Sylvera were the only affrayers secured, and were each fined $1.00 and costs.

AIKEN'S UNRIVALLED PHILOSOPHICAL SYSTEM
OF PENNMANSHIP. Taught in the short course of 12
Lessons, one hour each, at the Ladies' and Gentlemen's Writhing Academy, Joy's Building, No 8 Washington street, (Room No. 12)

Punis will be received at various hours during the day and evening, to suit their convenience.

Terms are moderate, and the most complete and satisfactory improvement is guaranteed to every one.

School Masters and Teachers of Pennmanship who are desirous of adopting this unrivalled system, will be taught on terms very liberal.

Mr Aiken introduced his system 10 years ago, since then he has taught over 20,000 scholars.

Terms $5 only for a course of lessons—immediate application will be safer than delays.

His Excellency, the President of the United States of America, expressed his opinion on this subject as follows—"I have heard," said he, "in much favor of the American system of Pennmanship, as taught by Mr Aiken, and I am of opinion from the very astonishing improvement made in a few hours, that the art is scarcely susceptible of any further improvement."

From the Essex Gazette.

Mr Aiken is a very poor teacher and writes with much facility. The specimens which he have seen, combined with the testimony of some of our friends, satisfy us that a more favorable opportunity for readily acquiring a correct style of Pennmanship, rarely presents itself.

From the Dedham Register.

Among the improvements that are continually introduced into our mechanic arts, the improvement in the art of penmanship by Mr Aiken, ought to be mentioned with unqualified approbation. By the assistance of his method, any person however bad his writing, will acquire purity, precision and elegance in a very few lessons.

Besides numerous other gentlemen by whom he comes highly recommended, are the following, all of whom have been his patrons. Rev Daniel Sharp, Rev Wm Jenks, Rev David Boynton, Rev Prince Haves, Rev Ephaphos Kirby, Rev Sam uel Dana, Rev Dr Richmond, Joseph Morton Esq, Elihu Ford Esq, Hon Josiah Dunham, Hon John Davis, Charles Thayer, Asaph Church Esq, Massachusetts, Hon Samuel Smith, John Smith Esq, New Hampshire, Hon Cornelius West brook, Rev Wm Parker, New York, Hon Daniel Lowry, Hon James Smith, New Jersey.

COMMERCIAL EDUCATION.
B. F. FOSTER, ACCOUNTANT, 116 Washington st., KEEPING, upon the most improved plans.

YOUNG GENTLEMEN are qualified for mercantile situations in a superior and expeditious manner—their attention being exclusively directed to practical utility.

CURRENT HAND WRITING.

Mr Foster's method is so simple and effective as to eradicate the most irregular scrawl, and to substitute a neat, rapid and beautiful style of writing.

This establishment is intended as a nursery for pennmanship en undisputed principles; and as a barrier against the encroachment of depraved taste and assumed talent, so frequently passed upon the notice of the public.

Hours of instruction from 7 to 12, A. M.; 2 to 5, P. M.; and 7 to 10 o'clock, in the evening.

BOOK-KEEPING.

In this art an attempt will be made to teach whatever belongs to the well regulated COUNTING HOUSE. Such rules and examples only are retained, as are necessary to elucidate the principles of the art, and give a connected view of the whole by which book keeping is so simplified that its principles soon become familiar, and their application to every transaction in trade easy.

ACCOUNTANTSHIP.

B. F. FOSTER, to write up, post, and balance merchants' books, to examine and rectify books or accounts gone into disorder, to calculate and dispense accounts, to furnish plans of books, adapted to business, arranged in the most simple, concise and approved forms. A regular apprenticeship in an extensive mercantile establishment, and several years' subsequent practice as an accountant and book keeper, he trusts is a sufficient qualification for his undertaking. 3-4wstf $ 20

BLOCKS!—The undersigned having made use of Mr Moses H. MARSHAL's Patent Bush BLOCKS, hereby recommend them as a more safe and powerful article than any of the kind in common use. The bush is supported at both ends by broad plates, thereby securing the sheave; and has proved safe in the heavy work of the quarries in Gloucester, where the common iron and composition castings have broken in great numbers. He has furnished us with several, and they have given us great satisfaction.

The above sheaves, of a variety of sizes, will be kept constantly on hand by JAMES CLARK, Pump and Block Maker, No 135 Ann street, Boston—where all persons interested are requested to call and examine for themselves.
